Spring

2017

WELCOME 2017 CAMPERS

Spring has sprung at Camp Lincoln and Camp Lake Hubert, which means summer is just around the corner! Winter snow has turned over to spring rain, and lake temperatures are steadily warming with spring sun basking down on Lake Hubert. All of us in the winter office are looking forward to the start of camp, and are excited for you to join us for our 108th Season. Marty, our Director of Facilities and Grounds, has been working with his crew all fall and winter to get camp ready for your arrival. I encourage you to look for information on some of these new projects within this Railsplitter. Camp will also post updates on progress of spring projects to the Camp Lincoln and Camp Lake Hubert Instagram and Facebook Pages. If you are not currently following us, then now is the time!

André and Stacey are putting the final touches on plans for Summer 2017, and we are excited to share some of them with you here. Please be sure to read about the 2017 Special Days and LT Program Announcements. For those traditional campers in 7th, 8th or 9th grades, please check out the Rally Day Dance Themes. Some of the awesome surprises for this summer you will find out when you arrive at camp, and we hope that it will be worth the wait.

The foundation of all the fun at Camp Lincoln and Camp Lake Hubert is our core values. They are the framework that surrounds and makes the life-changing experience that happens at camp possible. To be able to experience personal growth and development by trying new things and striving for excellence without fear of ridicule, because of the positive and supportive community you are a part of is a transformative experience. This is how we are able to develop quality relationships with each other and allow ourselves to have as much fun as we do.

Everyone, please check out the middle section of this Railsplitter, as it lists all of the campers currently signed up for this summer. My goal for you is - to see if your friends from prior years are returning, or if any of your friends or neighbors from home are joining you at camp for the first time. If they are not, please encourage them to join you for what we believe will be the best summer yet! Also, please do not forget to "booster" your friends by signing them up on our website. If they come, you will become a part of our Booster Club this summer with the opportunity to gain some pretty cool gifts.

I hope you enjoy this Railsplitter, and we look forward to seeing you at Camp Lincoln and Camp Lake Hubert this summer!

MEET THE MARKETING DIRECTOR: Rachel Brawley

I received a Bachelor's Degree in Music Theater, Arts Management and Marketing from Baldwin Wallace University in Cleveland, Ohio. Once graduated from college, I followed my gut which urged me to return to Camp Lake Hubert. While spending my summers in the Northwoods, I held various leadership roles, including: Head Counselor, Program Director, and Staffing Liaison. Coming back to camp as a staff member was one of the wisest choices I have made so far in my life. During the other nine months of the year, I worked at multiple regional theaters- including the Tony Award-Winning La Jolla Playhouse- in administrative, customer service, and marketing positions.

I am over the moon with the opportunity to work as the Marketing Director! I grew up in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, and attended Camp Lake Hubert as a camper for six years. My roots grow deep at camp as my mother, Rebecca Brooks, was a camper and staff member as well.

I am very excited to devote myself full time to Camp Lincoln and Camp Lake Hubert, a place that has been so dear to my family and me. See you all this summer!

SUMMER 2017 RALLY DAY DANCE THEMES

WHAT IS THE RALLY DAY DANCE?

During each of the four week sessions, a dinner and dance is scheduled for current 7th through 9th grade boys and girls. These campers get to come together for a themed dance while the Camp Lincoln Leadership Training (LT) Level 1 Participants DJ the night away.

1ST SESSION

TUESDAY, JUNE 27TH

PUT IT ON FOR YOUR CITY!

CL and CLH Campers, this is your night to rep your favorite city, state, or professional sports team. You heard us right. We want to see you and all of your fellow campers and counselors dressed to the nines in your team's dopest gear. Think athletic shorts, baseball caps, beanies, hoodies, leggings, sports jerseys, etc. Be ready to have a slammin' time as we slay the dance floor to the sounds of Jock Jams as well as to some of today's classic stadium hits.

2ND SESSION

WEDNESDAY, JULY 26TH

COWBOYS, HIPPIES AND ALIENS, OH MY!

This will be one wild, cool and far out night. Y'all better get fired up for this rootin' tootin', peace, love and joying, futuristic themed dance. In order to make sure that every theme is well represented, each grade will be assigned a designated way to dress for the dance. Here we go...

• 7th Graders: Cowboys and Cowgirls
Bandanas, country and western hats, big belt buckles, boots, flannel shirts, etc.

• 8th Graders: Hippies
Anything with fringe, bell bottomed jeans, Birkenstocks, cool shades, peace symbols, tie dye t-shirts, etc.

• 9th Graders: Aliens
Celia Mae, Herculoids, Martians, Mike Wazowski, Minions, Star Wars, etc.

• CL LT 1s: Combo
A combination of ALL 3 LOOKS.

OUR FIVE CORE VALUES

These values guide our decisions, activities, actions, and expectations of both campers and staff alike. Each one is connected and related to each other in an intricate web that ultimately creates "camp." They are not ideas we merely post on a wall to inspire; they are concepts we live by everyday in both speech and action. It is why we continue to be leaders in the camping industry after a century of success!

- 1 COMMUNITY
- 2 EXCELLENCE
- 3 FUN
- 4 PERSONAL GROWTH AND DEVELOPMENT
- 5 QUALITY RELATIONSHIPS

MEET THE CAMP LINCOLN HUBERT ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Shay Magnuson

University of Notre Dame, while also spending time tutoring at-risk youth in after school and juvenile correctional facility settings. My passion for working with children led me to spend many summers at Camp Lake Hubert.

I hope to continue promoting the Camp Lincoln and Camp Lake Hubert Values that encourage campers to discover new things, realize their abilities, and identify their contributions toward a greater community.

I am thrilled to be the Assistant Director at Camp Lake Hubert! Having grown up in the beautiful Pacific Northwest, I was easily captivated by the Northwoods of Minnesota. I received an Arts and Letters Pre-Professional Degree (Sociology and Pre-Medicine) from the

My history at Camp Lake Hubert includes five summers in roles of Gymnastics and Cheerleading Activity Specialist, Head Counselor, and the Two-Week Division Director. Camp is an extraordinary experience that has greatly impacted my professional development.

The ice cannot melt fast enough on Lake Hubert, and like many of you, I am counting down the days until camp begins! See you this summer!

SECOND THOUGHTS ON SLEEPAWAY CAMP?

By Dr. Tina Payne Bryson

Last month your child was completely gung-ho about attending sleep-away camp. But now that the weather's turning warmer, that enthusiasm might be turning to apprehension. Doubts, fears, anxieties and even dread are normal for kids who are going to be away from their parents for a period of time, especially if it is their first time, and especially if they are introverts. We have got checklists for all the gear our children need at camp, but it is also helpful to compile a checklist for preparing them emotionally if they are experiencing some cold feet or worries. It might look something like this.

2. PROBLEM-SOLVE.

Find out what your child's specific worries are, and then collaboratively problem-solve with her. Most kids worry about being homesick, but it might surprise you what they are concerned about. Kids worry whether they will like the food, that they will not be good at the activities, that they will wet the bed and even that their shoes will get wet. Whatever the worries, it can be helpful to brainstorm together and talk about the "what ifs," and what she can do in the circumstances she is thinking about.

3. NORMALIZE THE FEELINGS.

Just knowing that other kids feel that way, too, and that it is normal to feel worried about doing something that is different, can be quite helpful. Talk about a time you stepped outside your comfort zone and how you felt apprehension at first, how you handled your feelings, and how the experience ended up being great. (Please make sure to pick a resilient story—no stories about how it ended up being even worse than you could have imagined.)

4. GIVE KIDS A STRATEGY OR TWO TO HELP THEM CALM THEIR WORRIES.

One thing you can begin now that will give them the tools they can use while they are at camp is something I use with anxious kids in my private practice. I give them an assignment for each night: Once they are peaceful and relaxed and ready to fall asleep, they should place their hand on their chest (pledge-of-allegiance style). Only when they are feeling calm and peaceful. After doing this every night for a few weeks, the brain makes a connection between

AN EMOTION-PREP CHECKLIST FOR SLEEPAWAY CAMP:

1. TALK DIRECTLY ABOUT FEELINGS.

It is really unhelpful for parents to dismiss a child's feelings and say, "You will be fine. You will love it! Don't worry." (When someone has said "Don't worry," did that make you say, "Oh, OK. I had not thought of that." Not helpful, right?) Instead, if you sense your child is having some worries and he is not bringing them up, you can begin the conversation by saying something like, "Some kids feel nervous about camp as it gets closer. How are you feeling about it?" And whether or not your child is initiating the discussion himself, it's important to really listen and validate those feelings instead of trying to talk him out of them or dismissing them.

Dr. Tina Payne Bryson is an expert on the subject of parenting and speaks internationally to parents, educators, camps, and clinicians. She is a New York Times Bestseller for her books on parenting.

@tinabryson

the sensation of the hand on the chest and a feeling of calm relaxation.

Then, when the child is feeling worried or upset, he can easily place his hand on his chest wherever he is, and his body will begin to relax and his mind will begin to feel calm.

Another strategy is to teach him that while his feelings might feel really wild and stirred up, if he pauses to take a few deep breaths, the worries will settle, allowing him to see clearly again. The best thing I have found to teach this is the "glitter ball" analogy that Susan Kaiser-Greenland created....Then send a glitter ball, or a small snow globe, to camp with your child, explaining that he can shake it up and watch the glitter settle (while taking time to breathe) when he is feeling upset.

If you do these two things in the weeks before your child leaves for camp, you can build some skills and empower him with some tools he can pull out when he needs them. This allows him to avoid becoming a victim to his feelings, while being able to use his mind to change how he feels. (You might try some of these tools, too, if you are feeling worried about sending your child off!)

This moment is a great opportunity to teach kids that while we should pay attention to our feelings, our feelings should not rule our worlds. If you talk, listen, normalize and strategize, you will be preparing your children to go to camp with the best chance of overcoming their fears and learning something really important about themselves—that they are braver and stronger than they think. You will be doing much more than just prepping them for camp. You will be prepping them for life.

PRAISE FROM PARENTS

"Our son is a bit of a homebody, and can be shy at times and nervous to try new things. The Intro Camp was the perfect way to introduce him to variety of new things in a really nurturing and inspiring environment! He cannot wait to get back next summer and spend more time with the horses and at the riflery range. It's like he grew a year in five days!"

– Tracy T., Kansas; Camp Lincoln Parent

"Camp Lake Hubert is such a wonderful place for our daughter. We were so very excited when she said she that she would like to go for a month. She came home with new friends, new ideas, and adventures that she was very excited to share with her family and her friends. She also stated that she would like to go back to be a counselor some day!"

– Angie W., Minnesota; Camp Lake Hubert Parent

"Camp Lincoln always exceeds my expectations. Year after year, our son comes back proud of all that he accomplished and participated in. I especially appreciate that he is encouraged, mainly through cabin activities, to try things he has never tried before. Taking him out of his comfort zone, in a safe environment to try new things, increases his confidence and his fun!"

- Sabrina L., Illinois; Camp Lincoln Parent

"CLH again exceeded my expectations in caring for my daughter. As it was for me and my mother, CLH has been a truly formative and positive experience for her. I love that she has made friends from all over the country and it is doubly gratifying knowing that she will probably have those friends for her entire life, as I have had mine! CLH is a haven for girls to develop their strengths and voices. Camp helps them learn what they are made of, and what they are capable of doing."

– Elizabeth F., Connecticut; Camp Lake Hubert Parent

READY FOR S'MORES NOW?

WE SURE LOVE S'MORES AT CAMP!

We sure love s'mores at camp. There is nothing like roasting, or burning, your marshmallow with your friends by a campfire. In case you can not wait to eat s'mores this summer, here are some fun recipes that put a twist on the classic s'more! Make sure that a parent is with you when you are working with an open flame!

S'MOREOS

Smear peanut butter or Nutella on your graham crackers and throw an oreo in the middle.

COOKOUT CARAMEL S'MORES

Forget about the chocolate bar and drizzle your s'more with chocolate and caramel sauce before putting your top graham cracker on.

PB AND S'MORE

Take your traditional s'more and smash a Reese's Peanut Butter Cup in the middle.

DO YOU HAVE AN IDEA FOR A TWISTED S'MORE RECIPE?

Please send us your idea on the Camp Lincoln/Camp Lake Hubert Facebook Page for a chance to have your recipe posted!

@camplincolncamplakehubert

COOKIE SAMMICH S'MORE

Instead of using graham crackers, try using your favorite cookie. Whether your cookies are homemade or store bought, sugar or chocolate chip, the options are endless.

S'MORE APPLES

Take your favorite apple and dip it into a pot of melted marshmallows (like the camp-favorite dip candle!). Let the marshmallow cool on the apple and then dip the apple into a pot of melted chocolate, and, finally, cover your apple with bits of crushed graham crackers.

PEEPS S'MORE

Trade that plain marshmallow in for a peeps marshmallow. This makes for a delightfully colorful s'more.

S'MORE BANANA BITES

Place marshmallow fluff between 2 banana slices and stick in the freezer for 1 hour. Once the hour is up, dip each sandwich into melted chocolate and cover them in graham cracker crumbs.

FANCY S'MORE

Instead of using Hershey's Milk Chocolate try white chocolate! Before you place your final graham cracker on put a few blackberries on top of your marshmallow. Mix it up and try a fancy s'more with dark chocolate and strawberries or banana and nutella.

ALL ABOUT S'MORES HISTORY

S'MORES: "YOU CAN'T HAVE JUST ONE"

THE HISTORY OF S'MORES

If you are not familiar with s'mores, they are made by sandwiching a toasted marshmallow and a piece of chocolate in between two graham crackers. The name of the treat comes from the two words 'some more', clearly combined because people often wanted to have at least a second serving after having one s'more.

The treat was developed by campers in the early part of the 20th century, making use of the fairly new mass-produced marshmallows. Marshmallows were easy to transport, as were candy bars and graham crackers. Too, marshmallows could be warmed easily over a fire to make a delicious treat in a situation where other types of sweets would have been difficult to come by.

The true origin of the snack is unknown, as camping recipes tended to be passed down from person to person, and family to family. The first recipe for s'mores was published in 1927 in the Girl Scouts Handbook and the event marked the official introduction of the s'mores into popular culture.

The publication of the s'mores recipe was not the first pairing of chocolate, marshmallow and cookies.

In 1913, the Mallomar Cookie was introduced to market, followed in 1917 by the Moon Pie. Both products have a graham cracker-like base – a sandwich, in the case of the Moon Pie – and are topped with marshmallows and a layer of chocolate.

THE HISTORY OF MARSHMALLOWS

Ancient Egyptians were the first to enjoy a gooey treat, now called marshmallow, as early as 2000 BC. The treat was considered very special and was reserved for gods and royalty.

The marshmallow was made from the mallow plant (Athaea officinalis) that grows wild in marshes. The term marshmallow was derived from the native home of the plant and the plant name. Mallow is native to Asia and Europe, and has been naturalized in America. The Egyptians squeezed sap from the mallow plant and mixed it with nuts and honey. However, no one knows what the candy looked like in those times.

The French were introduced to marshmallows in the early to mid-1800s.

Owners of small candy stores whipped sap from the mallow root into a fluffy candy mold.

This time-consuming process was typically done by hand. Candy stores had a hard time keeping up with the demand. Candy makers started looking for a new process to make marshmallow molds made of modified cornstarch. At this same time, candy makers replaced the mallow root with gelatin and this created the marshmallow stable form.

In 1948, Alex Doumak revolutionized the process. He created and patented the extrusion process. This process involved taking the ingredients and running it through tubes. Afterwards, they were cut into equal pieces and packaged. Today, Americans are the main consumers of marshmallows. According to experts, Americans buy more than 90 million pounds annually.

HISTORY OF GRAHAM CRACKERS

Sylvester Graham Invented Graham Crackers in 1829. Graham, was a Presbyterian Minister and avid vegetarian, who promoted the use of unsifted and coarsely ground wheat flour for its high fiber content. The flour was nicknamed "graham flour" after Minister Graham, the main ingredient in Graham Crackers.

We know one thing for sure, they were right to call it a s'more, because you can not have just one!
